Clark took the stage at the Vancouver Convention Centre to present her party's platform for the next four years and vowed to deliver a "breakfast in the job market." Her opponents tried to portray her as a feckless leader who doesn't know how to govern, but Clark largely flew under the radar. Clark's first priority, she said, will be to raise the provincial government's performance by adopting a scientific approach. "Over the next four years, we will re-examine all our programs 6d1f23a050
